About Alzheimer's disease

- Alzheimer's is a fatal and degenerative brain disease. It has no cure and there are no survivors.
- Alzheimer's disease is the sixth-leading cause of death in America.
- Alzheimer's disease is the 21st century's health epidemic. As many as 5.2 million Americans are currently living with Alzheimer's disease and that number is expected to grow to as many as 16 million by 2050.
- A quarter million American children age 8 to 18 years old are providing care for a loved one with Alzheimer's.
- Every 71 seconds, an American develops Alzheimer's.
- There are between 200,000 and 500,000 people under age 65 with younger-onset Alzheimer's disease or other dementias in America.
- Without new prevention or treatment methods, Alzheimer's disease has the power to bankrupt families, communities and our health care system.

About the Alzheimer's Association

- The Alzheimer's Association is the leading voluntary health organization in Alzheimer care, support and research.
- The Alzheimer's Association offers help and hope to Alzheimer families in communities nationwide. Support and services are available through our 77-chapter network. Information is available 24/7 online at www.alz.org or by calling our toll free number at 1-800-272-3900.
